To Whom It May Concern,

The Missing Link was engaged by Atlassian to perform a code-assisted web application penetration test of the Atlas cloud application. Atlas is a cloud-based teamwork directory that enables users to share project context, updates, and learnings. It also helps users align their work with goals and topics, as well as discover and follow the work of other users. Furthermore, Atlas facilitates connections to where the work is being carried out.

The objectives of the engagement were to identify exploitable vulnerabilities, subvert standard workflows, gain unauthorised access to the application, sensitive information, or user generated content, and attempt an underlying server compromise.

Automated and manual penetration testing was performed by two security consultants between the 20th of March and the 13th of April 2023 in local development and cloud staging environments. A white-box methodology was followed, with full access to all source code, development guides, and the Atlas engineering team to ask questions of.

Sincerely,

The Missing Link Security Pty Ltd
